

Babeş-Bolyai University

Master program: Speech Therapy and Educational Audiology

Babeş-Bolyai University, Cluj-Napoca, Romania is a public institution of higher education whose mission is to promote and sustain within the local, regional, national and international community the development of specific cultural components. It comprises 21 faculties. Among these can be mentioned Faculty of Psychology and Education Sciences within which Special Education Department organizes courses for the program of master studies “Speech therapy and Educational Audiology”.

Through this master program is ensured the professional training in the following fields:

- prevention, identification, complex assessment, diagnosing speech impairments;
- planning the therapeutically interventions/sessions;
- therapeutically approaches of speech/language impairments;
- scientific research in language field.

The graduate students will prove knowledge in the following areas: medical, linguistics, psychological, psycho-pedagogical and in special didactics.

There are ensured practical trainings in speech therapy and in educational audiological area in specialized offices organized within the schools that are our department partners. In this way, the graduate students are trained for working in a multidisciplinary team composed by specialists in: speech therapy field, medical staff, psychologists, specialized teachers.

The teaching staff that is involved in this master program by developing courses and seminars is all of them Lecturers, Senior Lectures and Professors with PhD from the following faculties: Faculty of psychology and Educational Sciences, Faculty of Physics, Faculty of Biology, and Human Medicine Faculty.

This program was designed in order to answer to the requests formulated by families with speech-impaired children and in this way to the requests on the market.