4. Abstract

Taalexpert is an interactive platform for SLT professionals. It provides information and good practices on language development and language pathology in a multimodal way. On the platform you can find a database with all language tests and language assessment tools available in the Netherlands. The database can be searched with different search labels f.e. language domain, age of the child, but also on labels like: assessment standards or assessing professional. The platform also provides specific information about protocols of multidisciplinary language screening and assessments.
Another part of the platform is an APD-community in which professionals could gather information on auditory processing disorders and discuss about assessment and treatment of auditory processing disorders. 334 Professionals from different professions subscribed. Therefore this community is an excellent pond for discussing the controversies around APD
A major success is the App "Scolin" which is a tool for the SLT to convert test scores in the unit he/she wants. The App is available in the Appstore and Androidmarket.
